

Personal Injury

TSol is at the centre of personal injury and related private law claims in Government. We handle some of the most complex, interesting and media sensitive litigation in Government and act in cases before the full range of courts.

Our specialist expertise

We have expertise in the following areas:

- accident claims;
- clinical negligence;
- stress at work;
- industrial diseases;
- misfeasance in public office;
- malicious prosecution, false imprisonment, discrimination assault and battery; and
- inquests and other inquiries.

Our experience

Examples of high profile cases that we have handled include:

- group litigation against the MOD, such as that following the Gulf War;
- chemical and biological testing claims (Porton Down);
- claims arising out of the 'Lincoln Riots'; and
- the inquest into the rail crash at Selby and claims arising from it as well as from other railway crashes, for example Paddington, and Southall.

How we add value

Our central position within Government, and our extensive public and private law experience means that we can offer maximum value to our clients. In particular, we:

- save our clients money by acting on the Government's pledge for increased use of Alternative Dispute Resolution (please see our separate sheet on Alternative Dispute Resolution);
- have a thorough understanding of human rights legislation, having been at the forefront of considering its impact in Government;
- have in-depth knowledge and extensive experience of issues relating to disclosure including Data Protection and Public Interest Immunity;
- provide our clients with training highlighting previous cases and common issues to help them to avoid legal problems and litigation from arising in the first place.
- where appropriate, we can commission and manage private sector provision on your behalf leaving us to concentrate on cases where our expertise and experience counts most.

Our clients

Our main clients include the Ministry of Defence; the Ministry of Justice, in particular the Prison Service; the Home Office, in particular the UK Border Agency; the Crown Prosecution Service, the Department for Transport; the GCHQ; and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office. We also handle personal injury work for a number of other publicly funded bodies in England and Wales.
